

Supersymmetry in random matrix theory

Thomas Guhr

Lunds Universitet, Lund, Sweden

Date : October 6, 2006 (Friday)

Time : 1-1:45 PM

Abstract

Supersymmetry is now a widely used tool in statistical physics, particularly in the theory of disordered systems and in RMT. I will give an introduction to the method and present various issues arising in this context: anticommuting variables, Berezin integrals, generating functions, supergroups and integrals over supergroups.